

What's been happening in school this week?

Issue 273

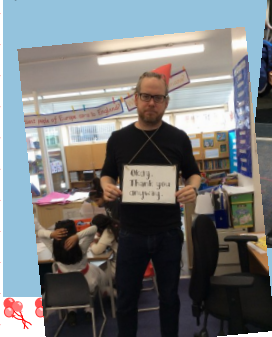

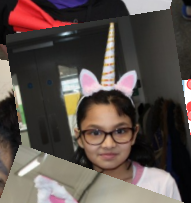

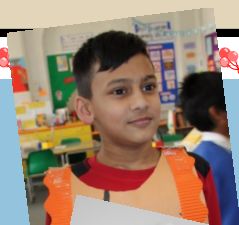

Friday 10 March 2017

The Harry Gosling Herald

Last week I promised to share with you some of the fabulous costumes worn for World Book Day. Our theme was favourite fictional animals...can you spot who these characters are and name the story they come from? Did it inspire you to buy a book from our Book Fair this week? Thank you Ashley and all the children who helped out every day! I hope everyone on our family cinema trip enjoys the film tomorrow. Have fun! Best wishes

END OF DAY SNACKS

I've started to spot some unhealthy snacks creeping back into our playground at home time! Don't forget we are a healthy school so unhealthy snacks are not permitted. This means no biscuits, sweets, crisps, chocolate or sugary drinks at the end of the day. Thank you!

WHAT ARE YOU READING THIS WEEK?

Lucie has been reading

".' Seven Brief Lessons on Physics' by Carlo Rovelli. It is a collection of scientific articles about the physics of space, time and the universe. I am very interested in how space and time work but I have not studied science since I was at school, so I was very excited to find this book. I have really enjoyed reading it because it explains very complicated scientific theories about the mysteries and wonders of the universe in language that I can, for the most part, understand. Reading about the key discoveries of modern physics reminds me that the roots of science are curiosity and wonder and the drive that we all share, from babies to adults, to reach out and understand the world around us. "

MATHLETICS STARS!

Our top 5 mathleticians for last week are:

Musa Ibn Ahmed - 3560
Muhammed Isa - 1750
Fadila Islam - 1520
Nuha Noor - 1480

PARENT INFORMATION MORNING

Next week, Miriam, our Assistant Head Teacher, and Shelley, our Parent Support Partner, will be talking about the importance of good attendance and punctuality. They will be offering some tips on how to help with this from a parent's point of view, as well as getting your ideas too. Please come along on Tuesday at 9.10 a.m.

Thank you Jade Class for your great assembly today. Next Friday, it will be Lilac Class's turn to share with us what they have been learning. All welcome! 9.10 a.m.
