

What's been happening in school this week?

Issue 284

Friday 9 June 2017

The Harry Gosling Herald

This year Harry Gosling and Stephen Hawking School have been working closely together so that we can all learn from one another. This week, a group of pupils from Year 2 and Year 5 visited Stephen Hawking School with Miriam and took part in an assembly there and a drumming workshop. Children from both schools learned a song and performed it together. Our pupils really enjoyed meeting everyone at Stephen Hawking School and learning about how we are all different and how we can all learn together. It was a great way to learn more about our values of 'teamwork' and 'equality'. The project helped us develop care and understanding of each other by seeing the different ways we all learn. Today we welcomed Sharon from Stephen Hawking School to our Friday assembly. She helped us all learn the song from the workshop. Best wishes, Jennie

WHAT ARE YOU READING THIS WEEK?

Calypso has been reading ..

'A Whole Life' by Robert Seethaler. The book is about a quiet and sometimes grumpy man called Andreas who only leaves his little home in the mountains twice in his life! However, the book is not boring but beautiful. His peaceful life is forever changed by a huge avalanche, World War II and tourism reaching his little mountain town. It is great to read a book about someone's life from start to finish, and his is a very interesting one that is written beautifully. My favourite part is his detailed descriptions of the mountains and the incredible differences between his life and our life now.

PARENT INFORMATION MORNING

We will not be running Parent Information Meetings during Ramadan. They will start again on Tuesday 27th June.
